

Ok College to host job fair

Cap News Jan 29 A6

Job seekers and those looking for career development opportunities in the area of business will gather at Okanagan College on Wednesday, Feb. 3, to find out about employment and career options in the south, central and north Okanagan.

Hosted by Okanagan College and the Okanagan School of Business, the Business Expo & Employment Fair will bring together business professionals and local industry sponsors for students and community members interested in all things business within the Okanagan.

The expo and fair will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the KLO campus.

This free event will give participants the opportunity to speak with employers such as The City of Kelowna, Kal Tire, TD Canada Trust and the RCMP about current and future career development.

"This student and community focused event provides an excellent opportunity for anyone considering a new career or employment in the Okanagan," said Jamie Morrow, Okanagan School of Business program and event coordinator.

"By bringing industry experts together with those seeking careers we are able to offer a direct line of communication and networking for job seekers they want."

See www.okanagan.bc.ca/business to see list of participating employers.

Counter Jan 28 A3

CITYINBRIEF

College to host job fair and expo

Looking for a job? Why not head down to the Okanagan College on Wednesday to meet some possible employers.

The OC and the Okanagan School of Business will join together to host the Business Expo and Employment Fair, which will bring together business professionals and local industry sponsors for students and community members interested in all things business within the Okanagan.

The expo and fair will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the KLO campus. The free event will give participants the opportunity to speak with employers such as the City of Kelowna, Kal Tire, TD Canada Trust and the RCMP about current and future career development.