Canned sculptures

Kyle Wilson, a Grade 8 student at Glenrosa Elementary, along with teacher Trina Zuyderduyn and Richard Bugera work to add an 'Oropogo' made of soup cans to their sculpture, the Valley that Can. The 750-can sculpture, above, designed by Sticks and Stones, represents an Okanagan Valley sunset, with green mountains, blue sky and Okanagan Lake.

It's part of the annual Construction foodraising event, now happening at Orchard Park mall. Schools, businesses and community groups have designed and built sculptures using cans of food. People can vote for their favourite sculpture at the mall or online at kelownaconstruction.com until Thursday at 5:30 p.m.

The event will raise over 21,000 cans of food and $2,500 in cash. All food will be donated to the Kelowna and Westside food banks and the Salvation Army.

In the photo below, Tammy Shepel, a Construction volunteer, tidies up the Hunger wall, which contains more than 4,300 cans of soup.
